A SKETCH OF THE LIFE OF REV. WILLIAM AUSTIN AND HIS WIFE, ELIZABETH AUSTIN

William Austin, son of Thomas and Eleanor (Smith) Austin, was born Dec. 8, 1773, in Prince George's County, Maryland. His parents were members of the Protestant Episcopal church.

When William was not yet five years old, his father died, leaving four children: Samuel, Thomas, William and Elizabeth. Among the court records at Upper Marlboro is an inventory of the goods and chattels of Thomas Austin late of Prince George's County deceased, authorized the 20th of July, 1778. Eleanor Austin, administratrix, appeared before the court on Dec. 19, 1778, and made oath.

In the final account rendered by Eleanor, the four children are named. Each child receives L48 16s 1d. At the close of the account is the following:

"Prince George's County. to wit: Came Batson Naylor who intermarried Feb. 8, 1780, with Eleanor Austin, administratrix of Thomas Austin, deceased, and made oath that the above account is just and true."

At the age of ten William had an experience that had a marked influence on his future life. He was at home alone one day, when he saw in the distance signs of a dreadful storm. He was much frightened, and in his distress began to pray, when suddenly he had a clear sense of the presence of God. All fear vanished; in its place was a great joy. This feeling persisted for some time, but gradually passed away.

William and his older brother Thomas were both apprenticed to carpenters for a term of seven years. William worked on the locks of the Potomac, and Thomas helped to build the capitol at Washington.

William's home-made arithmetic, eight inches wide by thirteen inches long, testifies to his determination to get some education. Inside he wrote with many flourishes:

Wm. Austin, his Book, January 10th, 1793.

On each page in large script is the subject, probably written by the teacher; below that the rule; then the problems worked out by the pupil. Here are a few of the subjects:

TO BRING MARYLAND CURRENCY INTO VIRGINIA CURRENCY
BILLINGSGATE RULE
TO FIND THE LONG HUNDRED OR SIX SCORE
THE SINGLE RULE OF THREE INVERSE

Extra pages at the back of the book were used for memoranda. On one is an account of the hanging of a young man for horse stealing at Charlottesville, Va., on Friday, the 5th of June, 1789. His speech at the gallows is given in full. This was the first person to be executed by sentence of the judges of the district court.

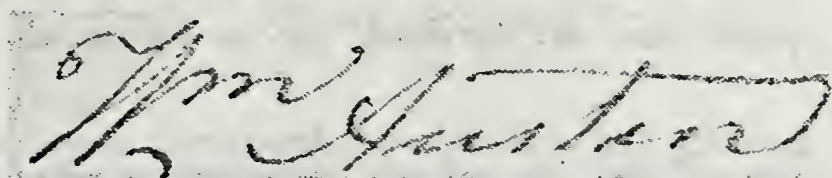

One account says that William spent a good part of his youth in Albemarle County, Virginia. His brother Samuel, who had married Ann Davis in Prince George's County, Md., was living in Albemarle in 1793. William, who was at Samuel's home, wrote a letter to his brother, Thomas, and kept a copy of the same in his arithmetic. The quaint style makes it interesting.

Albemarle County, Virginia, Dec. 15th, 1793.

Dear Brother,

I am exceedingly happy in this Convenience of writing a few lines to you informing you that I and my brother's family are all in health at this time thanks to the Lord for it. And brother I hope these lines will find you sharing the same blessing. Sir, I sent you a letter sometime last month & have not received any answer. I sent it by a private person & by receiving no answer yet I conclude perhaps you might not get it. Sir, I am to inform you that I am to leave my brother at Christmas & have not engaged anywhere yet, & if you think such a hand as I am Could get employ in the town where you work & a living price for his labor I should be very happy you would let me know by the first passage for a letter, if you don't intend to see us directly after Christmas, but we look for you in our part of the world & should be happy to see you when convenient. for it is out of my power to be in to see you this winter I expect. Sir, Sister Anny has a fine son—was born the 27th of last month. I've nothing more worth relating & so shall conclude with my love to you till death.

The baby was named Elkanah Davis Austin.

Thomas, too, lived in Albemarle for a while. Deeds at Charlottesville mention him as a resident in 1795 and 1797; but in 1798 he is called "Thomas Austin of the county of Berkeley."

These three brothers had an only sister Elizabeth. What became of her? We know nothing except what she herself tells us in a letter written to her brother William and signed "Elisabeth Robertson." This letter is given in full on page 34.

While in Albemarle County, William went out of curiosity to a Methodist meeting. He became interested in the speaker. To his great surprise his own feelings as a child during the storm were so clearly described that he knew the man must have had a similar experience. He went home deeply moved.

He joined Thomas at Charlestown, Berkeley County, and found work with a man who was building a house for Dr. Tiffin, afterwards Governor Tiffin of Ohio. William by this time had become rather gay. He attended horse-races, cockfights, fairs, and dances. He loved music, and became an accomplished fiddler, playing for dances, sometimes a good part of the night. The people with whom he lived induced him to attend the meetings held by the Methodists of that place. There he found a peace he had never known before, and gave his name as a member of the church. This was in 1797. Fearing that he might be tempted to use his fiddle again, he threw it into the open fire and burned it.

He was married Dec. 13, 1798, in Albemarle County, to his cousin Elizabeth Austin, only daughter of Samuel and Mary (Deel) Austin. The record of their marriage can be found at Charlottesville, in a box marked "Ministers' Returns." The clergyman was Jacob Watts. Elizabeth, who was born June 18, 1775, in Calvert County, Md., had come with her parents to Albemarle in 1779. As a wedding present her father gave her a Negro boy.

The day after the marriage Thomas sold to William his share of a tract of land the two had bought in Surry County, North Carolina. William and Elizabeth moved to their new home in January, 1799.

The slave became a problem. He was impudent and disobedient, and so strong they were half afraid of him. William wished to set him free, but was told that by the laws of that state the former owner of a freed slave was held responsible for his conduct. Very reluctantly he sold him, receiving two hundred dollars. To him and his wife it seemed "blood money," and they could not use it. After they came to Ohio they gave it to Wilberforce University.

Samuel and Ann sold their land in Virginia in the fall of 1801. Ann died the next May. Samuel then married Lydia Railsback. They moved to North Carolina and bought a farm near Mocksville, in what was later Davie County.

AND THEIR LIVING DESCENDANTS

The Naylor, Eleanor and Batson (William's mother and step-father), also moved to North Carolina. From old letters it appears that there were at least three children by Eleanor Austin's second marriage: John, Nellie, and Benjamin Naylor. Nellie married an Allen. In a letter written to William Oct. 4, 1814, Samuel says: "Step-father and Mother have enjoyed their health this summer and fall as well as is common for persons of their age. Brother Benjamin and family, Sister Nelly and her family, are all able to be about." Batson himself wrote from Surry County in 1821 to his step-son, William, but he did not mention his wife Eleanor. She must have passed away.

Another who went to North Carolina was Elizabeth's father. In deeds at Charlottesville, dated Nov. 1, 1804, and July 1, 1811, he is called Samuel Austin, Sen., of North Carolina of the county of Surry. We have no record of the death of his wife, Mary (Deel) Austin.

The Methodists in Surry County were soon convinced that William had gifts as a speaker, so in 1802 he was granted a license to be an exhorter. On Jan. 26, 1805, he was licensed to be a local preacher, the license being renewed from year to year. His brother Samuel, too, was a local preacher.

William's brother Thomas was still in Berkeley County, Va. He married Eleanor Ann McDaniel. In 1808 James Harris, Thomas Austin, and William McDaniel bought of the Mason heirs a tract of one thousand acres in Clinton County, Ohio, along Todd's Fork, about two miles north-east of the later site of Clarksville. In 1809 Austin and Harris brought their families in covered wagons over the old Indian Trail through Hagerstown, Cumberland, Uniontown, to Wheeling, thence either by Zanesville or Chillicothe to Clinton County. Thomas's first home was a log cabin half a mile north of the mouth of Cowan's creek.

William must have been considering such a move, for at the bottom of a page in the old arithmetic he wrote in 1804 this list:

- To Fisher's Gap
- To the Blue Springs
- To Abington
- To Bean's Station
- To Hogin's on Cum. River
- To Pharisees Tavern in the wilderness
- To Kingcades on Station Camp
- To Richmond Town
- To Boonesborough
- To Winchester

In the fall of 1810 he came on horseback to Ohio to see the new country. Returning to Surry County, he decided to move his family the next fall. He sold his farm and collected most of the money due for carpenter work, and made ready two wagons, one a Conestoga. There were twelve in the party: William and his wife and six children; his wife's father, Samuel Austin, Sen.; a girl named Nancy Clark; and a neighbor, Jacob Rupe, with his wife Margery, who drove a third team.

Should the baby be weaned before starting? It would be better to wait as he might get sick on the way. But they had not gone far until that young gentleman decided the matter himself by holding on with his teeth whenever during lunch time the wagon wheels plunged into a deep rut.

There were three mountain ranges to cross. When the top of a mountain was reached, a large sapling was cut down and attached to the end of the wagon. This served as a brake in the descent. Many travelers had passed that way, and saplings were often hard to find.

They probably followed the trail as outlined by William in the old arithmetic. We know that they passed through the Cumberland Gap, and crossed the Ohio River at Cincinnati by means of a ferry. Thomas met them at Deerfield (now South Lebanon), and they arrived at his home Oct. 23, 1811, just six weeks from the time they left Surry County.

James Harris had vacated his first cabin home on the bank of Todd's Fork near the mouth of Cowan's creek. It was not far from Thomas's home. William decided to live there while looking for available land. The nearest post-office and grist-mill were at Lebanon fifteen miles away, with roads almost impassable in winter. Game was abundant; deer as common as domesticated animals. At night they could hear the howling of wolves and the screaming of panthers. A milk cow attacked by a panther managed to reach home, but soon died. Her hide was so lacerated that William succeeded in tanning only enough for a chair-bottom.

This was too much for Nancy Clark. She announced that she must be taken back home. Over that long trail? Impossible! Then she threatened to drown herself and went down to the creek. The children hidden in the bushes watched her wade in slowly until the water reached her shoulders. She stopped, considered a moment, then waded out. When William heard of it, he said nothing but gave the horses an extra feed, and prepared to start the next morning. There was some delay, when who should appear but Nancy's father who had come on a sight-seeing tour. Nancy, of course, returned with him.

There was a goodly society of Methodists in the neighborhood, and William united with them. James Villars, Jr., said that the first Methodist sermon he ever heard was delivered by James Davidson in the Austin cabin; the second was by William Austin in the cabin of Villars' father.

William's field of labor soon widened. He rode on horseback all over Clinton, Warren, Clermont and Brown Counties, preaching in the rude churches or log cabins. His worn saddlebags are a mute witness to long hours in the saddle. He it was who preached the first Methodist sermon in Wilmington, the county seat of Clinton County, and with the help of Rev. Ambrose Jones he organized a society there in 1813. A memorial window in the present church bears his name as its first organizer.

At Lebanon, Ohio, September 17, 1815, he was ordained deacon by Bishop Francis Asbury. On Sept. 11, 1821, at the same place, he was ordained elder by Bishop Robert R. Roberts.

The search for land took him as far as the Falls of the Ohio at Louisville. There fine bottom land looked attractive until he noticed driftwood in the trees. East of Wilmington he was offered one thousand acres of wonderful land at one dollar an acre, but there was little drainage, and the fear of "chills and fever" deterred him.

Finally, on Dec. 6, 1813, he made his first purchase—323 acres of Thomas Barlow for $900.00. The number of his survey was 3643. It was situated in Vernon Township five miles farther up Cowan's creek, and six miles south-west of Wilmington. He chose the land because of the abundance of springs, and because he thought the hills surrounding the bottom land were health-giving. He built his cabin near a spring by the creek, and moved into it in January, 1814.

All the land was covered with trees and had to be cleared. Great heaps of walnut logs were burned. Fearing that some day he might be in need of fuel, he bought in 1824 a tract of 398 acres of timber land for $149.50, less than forty cents an acre. This tract was situated about a mile and a half from the main farm. Deer were seen in this woods as late as 1830.

The spring after William moved to the farm Indians came to look after their gourds and troughs under the sugar trees. William feared trouble, but they never came again.

In 1817 he and his neighbor, James Villars, Sr., deeded a little over two acres for a church site and a graveyard. The place was named Mt. Pleasant. The first meeting-house built of logs was so cold in winter that meetings were held in the homes of the members. In 1849 this log church was replaced by a commodious frame structure, which was used as a house of worship so long as any of the Austins lived in the community.

Three more sons were born to William and Elizabeth after they came to Ohio, one dying in infancy. The death of their eldest son, Thomas Deel Austin, in 1817 of "consumption" must have been a great grief to them.

The school that the children attended was so far away that on winter mornings they started before sunrise and followed a trail through the woods. Greased paper was used for window-panes. Everybody studied out loud. Later a schoolhouse was built on the Austin land not far from Mt. Pleasant.

With this big family of men-folks and only one daughter Elizabeth was obliged to have help. Many girls who belonged to good families went out to sew or spin or help with the housework. It was their only means of earning a little spending money. William, who paid the customary wages, records in his account book that he paid one girl 37½ cents a week; to another 67½ cents, but the next year only 50 cents. The first saved her money, attended school for a while and became a teacher, later marrying. The second, so it is recorded, spent hers in part as follows:

To one woman's saddle and bridle	$15.25
To stuff and trimmings for a cloak	6.78
To 1 pair of coarse shoes	1.00

She must have made an attractive picture as she rode to apple-cuttings, quiltings, big meetings, and the like, for she was soon married to a boy in one of the leading families.

After coming to Ohio William did no carpenter work except for himself. In 1823 he completed a large frame dwelling on a hill not far from Mt. Pleasant. The house faced north overlooking the beautiful valley, with the road at the foot of the hill. He called his new home "Pleasant Hill." The large frame grain barn was placed at the bottom of the hill, beside the road which then followed the valley to Mt. Pleasant. The log cabin was moved to a place near the barn and used for a stable. Later the road was changed and ran up the hill to the east of the house. Both house and grain barn are still in use.

Many a Methodist preacher was entertained in this home. Sometimes Bishop McKendree, or Bishop Roberts, would stop here for a week's rest from the long horse-back journeys.

In the new house was a tiny bedroom opening off the sittingroom, built purposely for the only daughter, Mary. But it is said that she never occupied it, for Jonathan Tribbey came courting and married her before the house was completed.

It was the custom in the neighborhood to serve whiskey to the men at harvest time, as a stimulant was supposed to enable them to work better. But when William went out early one summer morning and found one of his reapers, who had imbibed too freely the night before of "Tansy Bitters," still in a drunken stupor not far from the house, he made up his mind that no more liquor would be furnished by him. The next year he sent word around that no whiskey would be served but that he would give its equivalent in additional wages. The neighbors prophesied that he would not have a hand in the field, but they all came and approved the change.

More land was bought, until he had over a thousand acres, but not all in Clinton County. He mentions in his account book that by 1843 he had given each of his children fifteen hundred dollars. He finally rented the home place to his sons William R., Benjamin N., and David S. Later they bought the land. David remained in the old home, and William R. and Benjamin each built a house for himself.

Among the death notices in the Western Christian Advocate in 1848 appeared the following:

WILLIAM AND ELIZABETH AUSTIN

April 27, 1848—At Pleasant Hill, Clinton County, Ohio, Mrs. Elizabeth Austin, consort of Rev. William Austin, and only daughter of Samuel and Mary Austin - - - - - She was a very affectionate wife, a most loving and tender mother, and a kind neighbor.

After his wife's death William for a time kept a housekeeper, but later he and his son David's family all lived together. People from far and near came to see "Uncle Billy." His mind was clear and he could recall many incidents in his long and eventful life. In 1857 his nephew Elkanah wrote from North Carolina, requesting that he write a history of the family. This William did, the original manuscript being sent to Elkanah.

A railroad came to Clarksville in 1853, but he did not go to see it.

Death claimed him Jan. 17, 1860, when he was a little past eighty-six. His funeral was preached by Rev. Micah Gilbert Purkhiser from the text "I have fought a good fight." Burial was beside his wife at Mt. Pleasant.

His will, written Feb. 11, 1853, provided that his entire estate be divided into seven equal parts, the heirs of his daughter Mary Tribbey, late wife of Jonathan Tribbey, to receive one part, and the remaining six parts to be divided among his six sons. All his property was to be sold at private sale. His sons Samuel S. and David S. were named executors.

Two thirds of the original farm are still in the Austin name. The part owned by David S., including the home on "Pleasant Hill," is owned by David's youngest son. William R.'s land is now owned by his great grandson. The heirs of Benjamin N. sold their land some years ago.

After the Austins moved away from that community, the church was not used long, for Villars' Chapel had become more of a community center. With permission from the Ohio Methodist conference, the church was sold in 1927 and the proceeds used to build a new fence around the graveyard. The Mt. Pleasant Burying Ground Association now has a fund, the interest from which is sufficient to keep the grounds in good condition.

The old log schoolhouse was replaced in 1862 by a good frame building. Every one of the children of William R., Benjamin N., and David S., attended there—so many, in fact, that it was sometimes called Austin's College. The building still stands, but is now used as a summer cottage by one of William R.'s descendants.

THE GENEALOGY OF THE AUSTIN FAMILY

AS WRITTEN BY WILLIAM AUSTIN

First: all our ancestors were Protestants of the Established Church of England.

No Papal blood ever ran in our veins!

Thank God for that!!

My Great Grandfather Austin lived and died in England. At a very early time two of his sons came over to America (Samuel and Henry), and settled in Calvert County, Maryland. Samuel, my Grandfather, married in that county a young lady by the name of Elisabeth Marshall, her father and family having come over to Calvert County some time before. The name of my Great Grandfather Marshall was Thomas (I think). After Samuel was married his brother Henry left Calvert County to "see more of the new world," and his brother never heard of him after he left Calvert County.

My grandfather and mother raised eleven children, five sons and six daughters: SAMUEL, HENRY, THOMAS, JAMES and WILLIAM; ELISABETH, REBEKKA, VERLINDA, MARY, MARGARET and ELEANOR.

The two older girls married James and John Gibson (brothers). The next two in age married Martin and William Wells. My impression is that MARGARET married a Mr. Everett and left Calvert County, and ELEANOR married William Marshall.

SAMUEL, the oldest son, married Mary Deel and raised five children: Samuel, Henry, Thomas, Elisabeth and William.

HENRY married Sarah Hardesty and raised seven children: Henry, Samuel, Nancy, Thomas, Richard, John and Obed.

THOMAS (my father) married Eleanor Smith in Anarundle County, Md. From there he moved west over the Patuxant River into Prince George's County where he died at the age of about thirty-two years, leaving a widow and four orphans: Samuel, Thomas, William and Elisabeth.

JAMES died in Calvert County, leaving three children: Margaret, Richard and Samuel. I have forgotten to whom he was married.

UNCLE WILLIAM died young, leaving a widow and infant daughter which grew up and married a Mr. Sunderlong.

Something remarkable in their history is the fact that each of the five brothers raised one daughter each only.

UNCLE SAMUEL, UNCLE HENRY and UNCLE MARSHALL all moved to Albemarle County, Virginia. There I was married to Elisabeth Austin, (daughter of my UNCLE SAMUEL), and we have had nine children born to us: Thomas Deel, Mary, Samuel Smith, James Boyd, William Rupe, Benjamin Naylor, Henry Robertson, Nelson, and David Sharp. Nelson died in infancy, and Thomas Deel at seventeen years. Mary died in her fifty-sixth year, and had been a member of the M. E. Church forty years.

UNCLE HENRY's daughter Nancy married Burdit Skinner. UNCLE JAMES' daughter Margaret married William Burgess.

After Rebecca's death, he married (3) Jan. 31, 1872, Mrs. Jane Ingersoll, who died in 1896. No children.
- IV. James Boyd Austin, born Aug. 16, 1806, in Surry Co., N. C. Died Sept. 27, 1857, at Logan, Ohio. Itinerant Methodist preacher twenty-nine years. The first Methodist to preach at Lakeside, Ohio. Married Aug. 13, 1830, Ruth Shirley, born May 1, 1811, near Chillicothe, O.; died May 5, 1891, at Reno, Pennsylvania. See page 14.
- V. William Rupe Austin, born Sept. 8, 1808, in Surry Co., N. C. Died April 18, 1875, at his home near Mt. Pleasant. Farmer. Married Aug. 15, 1837, Elizabeth Darby, born Sept. 16, 1809, in Maryland; died Aug. 1, 1900, in Wilmington, Ohio. See page 14.
- VI. Benjamin Naylor Austin, born Aug. 14, 1810, in Surry Co., N. C. Died April 25, 1879 at his home near Mt. Pleasant. Farmer. Married (1) April 12, 1838, Mary Ann Cowgill, born Nov. 15, 1819, near Morrisville, Ohio; died May 12, 1853, near Mt. Pleasant. Married (2) Oct. 30, 1853, Mary Smith, born Dec. 3, 1821, at the Smith Tavern four miles east of Clarksville; died Dec. 12, 1901, in Wilmington, Ohio. See page 15.
- VII. Henry Robertson Austin, born Oct. 5, 1812, about two miles north of the present site of Clarksville. Died June 16, 1871, near New Burlington, Ohio. Farmer. Married (1) Jan. 28, 1836, Catherine Cowgill, born Sept. 20, 1815; died May 8, 1839 near Morrisville. Sister of Mary Ann Cowgill. Married (2) May 7, 1840, Jane Shields, born July 18, 1812, near Morrisville; died June 19, 1851, near Morrisville. Married (3) Sept. 29, 1852, Mary Collett, born Feb. 3, 1817, near New Burlington; died Feb. 19, 1875, near New Burlington. See page 15.
- VIII. Nelson Austin, born in 1815 near Mt. Pleasant. Died at birth. His name is not given in the family Bible, but he is mentioned in the genealogy, and his was the first dated stone at Mt. Pleasant.
- IX. David Sharp Austin, born June 3, 1816, near Mt. Pleasant. Died Oct. 18, 1886. at Pleasant Hill. Farmer, and local preacher in Methodist Episcopal church. Married (1) Nov. 12, 1838, Sarah Rebecca Woodmansee, born Feb. 16, 1820, in Butler Co., Ohio; died March 17, 1848, at Pleasant Hill. Married (2) April 18, 1850, Lois Smith, born Sept. 20, 1831, at the Smith Tavern; died Feb. 4, 1924, in Wilmington, Ohio. Half sister of Mary Smith. See page 16.

The birth dates for the above nine children, except Nelson, were copied from the family Bible in William Austin's own handwriting.

It is easy to account for the middle names of Deel, Smith, Rupe, Naylor, and Robertson. Nelson perhaps was named for the famous English admiral. James Boyd and David Sharp were given the full names of two well-known Methodist preachers of that day.

The nine were all buried at Mt. Pleasant; also the one son-in-law and seven of the daughters-in-law.

II. FAMILY OF MARY AUSTIN TRIBBEY

Children of Mary Austin and Jonathan Tribbey:

1. William Joseph Tribbey, born Oct. 8, 1824; died April 22, 1900. Not married.
2. John Dela Tribbey, born Mar. 29, 1826; died Jan. 16, 1902.
Married (1) Mary McFlynn. Four children.
Married (2) Izora Stewart. Eight children.
3. Ann Elizabeth Tribbey, born Mar. 28, 1828; died April 23, 1898.
4. Mary Virginia Tribbey, born Jan. 9, 1830; died July 5, 1893.
5. Lewis James Tribbey, born April 16, 1833; died Jan. 18, 1893. Not married.
6. Sarah Caroline Tribbey, born March 21, 1836; died Jan. 11, 1908.
Married Joel G. McClave. Five children.

For living descendants see pages 17 and 18.

THE EFFECT OF VITAMIN DEFICIENCY ON THE GROWTH OF THE RAT

BY DR. J. H. HOLLAND, JR., AND DR. J. H. HOLLAND, JR.

From the Department of Physiology, University of Illinois, Urbana, Ill.

(Received for publication, February 1, 1919.)

It is well known that the growth of the rat is retarded by a deficiency of vitamin A.

The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a deficiency of vitamin A on the growth of the rat.

The rats were divided into two groups, one of which received a diet deficient in vitamin A, and the other a diet containing vitamin A.

The results of the experiment show that the growth of the rats receiving the deficient diet was retarded.

The weight of the rats receiving the deficient diet was significantly lower than that of the rats receiving the diet containing vitamin A.

The length of the rats receiving the deficient diet was also significantly lower than that of the rats receiving the diet containing vitamin A.

The results of this study indicate that a deficiency of vitamin A has a marked effect on the growth of the rat.

Iurat Coram me Die & Anno Supra Dict.

Ellis Slater DyComry County Calvt.

The above will is on file at The Hall of Records, Annapolis, in Liber 33, folio 114.

An inventory of the estate, valued at L425 19s 5d, was filed by the executrix, Elizabeth Austin. It is a most interesting document.

William Austin, who is named in the above list of children of Samuel and Elizabeth (Marshall) Austin, was an uncle of Rev. William Austin.

FAMILY OF SAMUEL AUSTIN, SEN., AND HIS WIFE, MARY (DEEL) AUSTIN

Presumably, Mary (Deel) Austin died either in Albemarle County, Va., or in Surry County, N. C. She did not come with her daughter Elizabeth to Ohio in 1811.

In his family Bible William Austin recorded the following dates:

Samuel Austin, Sen., was born Oct. 23, A. D. 1739.

Samuel Austin, Sen., departed this natural life Dec. 26th, A. D. 1824.

Ages of his children:

Samuel Austin was born April 27th, 1766.

Henry Austin was born Jan. 8th, 1771.

Thomas Austin was born March 26th, 1773.

Elisabeth Austin was born June 18th, 1775.

William Austin was born Jan. 1st, 1780.

We know little regarding the eldest son. Nov. 1, 1804, his father deeded to him 109 acres on the north fork of the James River. July 1, 1811, he gave him 117 acres. See deed books at Charlottesville, Va.

The other sons all moved from Albemarle County to Sumner County, Tennessee. Thomas wrote Jan. 5, 1812, from Sumner County to his father and sister in Ohio, and signed the letter "Thomas and Fanny Austin." Henry wrote July 21, 1817, that he had bought 100 acres one mile from the bank of the Cumberland River and three miles from Bledsoe's Lick. He was 23 miles from Thomas and 12 miles from William. He and his wife Polly had named their youngest child Fleming D. Austin.

At Charlottesville, in a box of "Ministers' Returns," the following marriages were reported by Rev. Jacob Watts:

Feb. 2, 1797, Thomas Austin and Frances Dickenson.

Dec. 24, 1799, William Austin and Edeith Dickenson.

Dec. 24, 1800, Henry Austin and Polly Dickenson.

We have nothing to prove that this William who married Edeith was the brother who went with Thomas and Henry to Tennessee.

Nothing further is known of Elizabeth Austin's brothers.

SAMUEL AUSTIN

BROTHER OF REV. WILLIAM AUSTIN

Samuel Austin, eldest son of Thomas and Eleanor (Smith) Austin, was born April 12, 1769, in Prince George's County, Maryland. On Jan. 18, 1793, in the same county he was married to Ann (or Anna) Davis. They moved to Albemarle County, Virginia, and on May 22, 1793, bought 151½ acres of land. Deed Book 11, page 135. Oct. 5, 1801, they sold this land for $600. Ann died May 7, 1802, in the twenty-ninth year of her age, leaving three children.

Samuel then married Lydia Railsback. They moved to North Carolina, and lived on a farm near Mocksville. Lydia, who was born Jan. 8, 1780, died Oct. 5, 1821, and was buried at Olive Branch in Davie County. Samuel's third wife was Mrs. Margaret Ellis who survived him.

Samuel was a local preacher in the Methodist Episcopal church. He preached his last, some said his most powerful, sermon at a camp-meeting shortly before his death. He died Dec. 1, 1832, and was probably buried beside his second wife at Olive Branch.

Three of his letters to his two brothers in Ohio have been preserved. Excerpts from one are given here.

Mocksville, N. C., August 6, 1830.

Very Dear Brothers and Sisters and Children:

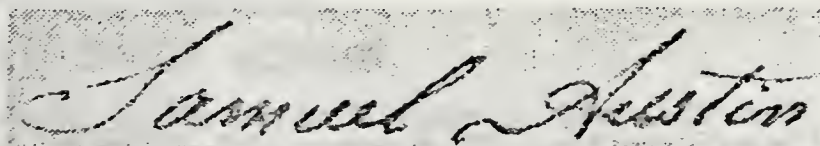

I again take up my pen to write you a few lines in hopes that these may reach you if others have miscarried. I think it was two years last January since I had any hearing from you, and whether you have forgotten me and mine or not, I can assure you that I have not forgotten you and yours. Our family connection are, I think, all in common health. Step-father was at my house this morning as well as is common for one of his age.

I still try to preach in my poor weak manner as often as I can. Last Sunday I addressed an attentive congregation at Whitcoes old meeting-house with a considerable degree of liberty. We have some good meetings. The faithful soldiers of the cross get happy and shout aloud.

I will now inform you that I married my third wife the 7th of last January, Margaret Ellis, the widow of James Ellis. Her maiden name was Phillips. She was a Methodist in good standing twenty-five years. She has eight children; three of them are living with me, and six of my own children. My three children by my first wife and youngest daughter by my second have been married. Elkanah has lost his wife. Henry, my oldest son by my second wife, has learned the cabinet business, and is now at work for himself. Thomas, the next oldest, has been at school this summer, and Anna has been teaching school a quarter, and her time is out today; and on Monday next they both expect to commence going to a grammar school. The other four boys work for me on the farm.

Produce is at a very low price. Corn has sold last fall and the past spring from 12½ to 30 cents a bushel; wheat 30 to 50; pork 2½ to 4; cotton 7 to 10.

And as I am old and my hand trembles somewhat, I should conclude my letter by telling you that while I am writing I feel the Lord present and precious. My family joins me in our best wishes for you all.

FAMILY OF ELKANAH DAVIS AUSTIN

We have three letters written by Elkanah to his uncle William in 1840, '43, and '53, from Green Valley, Rowan County, North Carolina. He reveals himself as a man of dignity and refinement. The letters are full of little items about the whole family connection, both Austins and Naylor, in North Carolina—just the things his uncle would like to hear. He even gives news from the Austins still in Albemarle County.

As to his own family, he says that his eldest son, Davis Naylor Austin, was living at Fort Valley, Georgia, and was a cabinet maker, besides practicing "botanic medicine." The second son, Samuel Wesley Austin, after attending college at Abington, Va., was teaching. The elder daughter, Mary Jane, had married William W. Burch, and lived at Fort Valley; later at Pontotoc, Miss., where they were both teaching. The other daughter, Caroline Elizabeth, was living not far from Green Valley.

One account says that, during the Civil War, Elkanah freed his slaves and moved farther south. It is a pity we know so little about him. It was Elkanah who asked his uncle William to write a history of the family, and we are greatly indebted to him.

THOMAS AUSTIN BROTHER OF REV. WILLIAM AUSTIN

Thomas Austin, second son of Thomas and Eleanor (Smith) Austin, was born Aug. 2, 1771, in Prince George's County, Maryland. In his youth he was apprenticed to a carpenter.

In deeds at Charlottesville, Va., he is called "Thos. Austin of Thos. of the County of Albemarle." But later he is "Thomas Austin of the County of Berkeley." In 1797 he bought 1040 acres in Albemarle for L136 16s. In 1798 he sold 165 acres for L80, and 875 acres for L264 4s.

He was married Nov. 17, 1803, to Eleanor Ann McDaniel, daughter of William and Priscilla Ann (Winn) McDaniel. Eleanor was born Aug. 13, 1784.

Thomas and his brother William bought of John Harbour a tract of land in Surry County, North Carolina. Thomas sold his share to William and gave bond Dec. 14, 1798. Both are named as residents of Berkeley County, Va. Among William's papers was found the following receipt:

Quintus of 1798. Received of Thos. Austin the sum of forty pounds being in full of all accounts due or demand
John Naylor Thos. Austin son of Thos.

In 1809 Thomas and Eleanor Ann moved to Clinton County, Ohio, and settled along Todd's Fork, north-east of the later site of Clarksville. Their first log cabin was soon replaced by a substantial frame house.

Thomas died May 30, 1844. Eleanor Ann died Oct. 10, 1846. Both were buried in the little cemetery on the hill just across the road from their home. Eleanor's father, William McDaniel, was also buried there. The old house is no longer occupied, but the enormous chimney still holds itself erect.

In a note-book in which he kept a list of his sermons, William Austin wrote an account of his brother's death:

My brother Thomas Austin departed this life at one o'clock on Thursday afternoon, the 30th day of May, 1844. On Saturday, the first of June, at 9 o'clock A. M., Doctor Baker preached his funeral to a large assembly. His text was 2 Cor. 5-1: For we know, etc. He preached a good sermon and it was listened to with interest. The funeral was preached at his former residence, after which his remains were taken to the burying ground north of the house and interred, the burial service according to our discipline first having been read at the grave by the same preacher.

My brother was confined with his disease six weeks, lacking seventeen hours, through which time he suffered much in body. I visited him the second day after he was taken ill. I found his mind calm and serene. I think I was with him half the time of his affliction, perhaps more. I frequently conversed with him on the subject of his present enjoyments and future prospects, always found him calm and serene, testifying his way was clear, his prospect good, all was well, etc. About one hour before he died (life sinking apace), for the satisfaction of his family and friends who were gathered around the bed of the patriarch, I again said, "My brother, if you cannot speak, give us another token; if all is well and your way clear, let us know by raising your right hand." He first raised his right hand near the full length of his arm, and then his left, and thus in holy triumph appeared to breathe his last. O may we die the death of the righteous and our last end be like his. Amen.

My brother was in the 73d year of his age since the second day of last August, and lacking about two weeks of 25 years a member of the Methodist Episcopal church.

ELIZABETH AUSTIN ROBERTSON ONLY SISTER OF REV. WILLIAM AUSTIN

Elizabeth Austin, only daughter of Thomas and Eleanor (Smith) Austin, was born some time between 1774 and 1778, in Prince George's County, Maryland. At Upper Marlboro, in the final account of her father's estate, she is named as the youngest of the four children.

Among the marriage licenses at Upper Marlboro, in a modern bound book, said to be a copy of records now lost, is this item:

Austin, Elizabeth; Robinson, Benjamin, Feb. 7, 1793.

We cannot be positive that this is she. All we actually know is what she tells us in a letter addressed to

Mr. William Austin, living in Lebanon
Warren County
State of Ohio.

September the 30th, 1817.

Dear Brother & Sister:

By this opportunity I wish to inform you that we are now living at Magruder's Ferry, and this is the third year we have been living here. We are all in tolerable health except Mr. Robertson and myself, and we have something of chills and fevers. Persons in general are very sickly. We have had a very seasonable year; we have tolerable good prospect for crops.

I must inform you that I have never had a hearing from our friends since Brother Tommy was in. I hope that if you have heard from our friends in Carolina since Brother was in, I hope you will write me word how they all are. If my poor old mother is living let me know by your letter, and if she is dead let me know by your letter, for I have never heard from one of them since they moved to Carolina, only by Brother. It appears like you had all forgotten me. I am far out of sight and far out of mind. If you could make it convenient to come to see us, happy should I be to see you, but I suppose it is with you as it is with me, you have a family to take care of as well as me. But if we never meet in this world, I hope we shall meet in Canaan's happy shore where we shall part no more.

Dear Brother, I inform you that we have had the misfortune to lose our three eldest children; that you will be informed by Brother Tommy's letter.

I have nothing more worth relating to you. I now conclude with my love to you all. My family all joins in love to you and your family.

Elizabeth Robertson

Magruder's Ferry was in Calvert County, on the east side of the Patuxent River. Little of the town remains today except a warehouse.

In 1852 William Austin received a letter from William A. Robertson who was then living in Washington D. C. He was contemplating a visit to his uncle William, and would bring with him his eldest son and a nephew. He planned to go by train to Cumberland, thence by stage to Wheeling, and by boat down the river to Cincinnati. What he desired to know was how far it was from Cincinnati to Clarksville, and how near the stage route was to the Austin farm. There is no record that he ever made the visit.

Nothing more is known of the Robertsons.

A DISCUSSION OF THE GENEALOGY

WRITTEN BY REV. WILLIAM AUSTIN

On a preceding page is given the genealogy of the Austin family written by William Austin at the age of eighty-three. How can we verify his statements? Our first impulse would be to consult the court records of Calvert County, Maryland. But in 1882 the Court House with all the records was destroyed by fire. Fortunately in the province of Maryland there was a double system of filing. All testamentary records were made out in duplicate, the deputy commissary in each county making one, the commissary general for the province making the other at his office at St. Mary's, later at Annapolis. These documents are now in the Hall of Records at Annapolis. Of those relating to the Austin and Marshall families only a few can be mentioned here.

Elizabeth Austin received from Thomas Marshall of Calvert County on Feb. 19, 1731, a deed to sixty-seven acres of a tract of land called "Cox's Choice." See unnumbered page opposite page 74, Vol. I, No. I.

In 1753 Samuel Austin owned 100 acres of Cox's Choice; Thomas Marshall owned 250 acres. James and John Gibson and Martin Wells owned land in other tracts.

Thomas Marshall died intestate. An inventory of his estate was filed June 20, 1763, by Samuel Austin, administrator. Ann Wyley and Mary Stone sign as next of kin. (Mary Marshall, daughter of Thomas, married John Stone).

The will of Samuel Austin, Planter, of Calvert County, written Dec. 21, 1763, names the same eleven children as given by William Austin, but in a different order: Elizabeth, Virilinday, Mary, Rebecca, Samuel, Henry, Thomas, James, Margaret, William and Eleanor. He appoints his "loving wife Elizabeth Austin whole and sole executrix." The will is given in full on a preceding page.

Samuel Austin died before completing the settlement of the estate of Thomas Marshall, and his wife Elizabeth was appointed administratrix in his place. See Liber 55, folios 148 & 155.

Richard Deale of Calvert County, in a will written Dec. 15, 1767, bequeathes to his daughter Mary Austin a Negro wench named Lucy, a Negro man named Michael, and a Negro girl named Christian.

This Mary Austin is doubtless the Mary Deel who married Samuel Austin, son of Samuel. Their first child was born in 1766.

RECORDS FOUND AT THE MARYLAND HISTORICAL SOCIETY:

At the Historical Society in Baltimore is a copy of Vestry Proceedings of All Saints Parish, Calvert County, covering the years 1702-1753. Here are items of interest to us:

Aug. 28, 1710, Thomas Marshall paid 200 pounds of tobacco for "the pew where the old passage was." In 1720 he was warden; in 1730 he was counter, that is, tobacco teller; in 1753 he was one of the new inspectors who met to sell the tobacco, but finding no buyers "sold it not." April 11, 1748, Samuel Austin was chosen warden; in 1749 he was vestryman; 1750-1753 he was inspector for Lower Marlboro.

Also at the Historical Society is the tax list for Calvert County for the year 1783, which shows that JAMES AUSTIN paid tax on 80 acres in Cox's Choice. Listed in his personal property were 7 black cattle. In 1786 the HEIRS of JAMES AUSTIN paid tax on the same 80 acres.

This seems to show that William Austin was correct when he said that JAMES died in Calvert County.

Mention has already been made of records found in Prince George's County.

In the genealogy William says, "My impression is that MARGARET married a Mr. Everett and left Calvert County." Miss Sarah E. Bennett of Baltimore, who is a direct descendant of this line, has records which show that MARGARET, born Sept. 7, 1748, married Joseph Everist and moved to Harford County.

At Charlottesville, Va., are marriage records, deeds, wills, inventories, showing that, as William Austin said, the families of UNCLE SAMUEL, UNCLE HENRY, and UNCLE (WILLIAM) MARSHALL all moved from Maryland to Albemarle County. William and his two brothers were also there for a time; so that about 1795 there must have been in Albemarle County four Samuels, three Henries, three Thomases, and two Williams. Some task to identify them now. William's brothers were usually designated as Samuel, son of Thomas; and Thomas, son of Thomas. Their uncles were called Samuel Austin, Sen., and Henry Austin, Sen.

In the library at the Archaeology Building at Ohio State University is a census of Albemarle County taken in 1785. Here are two items:

Samuel Austin, 8 white souls, 1 dwelling, 7 other buildings.

Henry Austin, 9 white souls, 1 dwelling, 4 other buildings.

(These must be Samuel, Sen., and Henry, Sen.).

The above-mentioned records confirm many of the statements made by William Austin in his genealogy of the family.

He seems, however, to have been mistaken on one point: he thought that his great-grandfather lived and died in England, and that his grandfather was one of the two brothers who came first to Calvert County. This is not surprising when we remember that William was quite young when his father died; he did not live in Calvert County; and he probably heard the story at family gatherings. That he made a mistake seems evident from the following will found at Annapolis, Liber 24, folio 209:

LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT OF HENRY AUSTIN

OF CALVERT COUNTY, MARYLAND

In the name of God Amen. I Henry Austin of Calvert County in the province of Maryland, being in good health of body and of sound and perfect mind and memory, do make and ordain this my last will and testament in manner and form following:

First, I desire that my debts be paid and discharged at the discretion of my Excors hereafter named and as touching the Temporal Estate that it hath pleased God to bestow upon me I do give and bequeathe in manner and form following:

I do give and bequeathe unto my son Samuel Austin one half of my estate of what sort or kind soever. The other half I do give and bequeathe unto Henry and Elinor Austin, son and daughter of Henry Austin deceased, to be equally divided between them when they come to full age, but if one or both of them should die before they arrive at full age then his or her or their parts I do give and bequeathe unto Henry Austin son of Samuel Austin.

I do give and bequeathe unto my loving wife Jane Austin one negro girl called Janey during the natural life of her the said Jane Austin, and at her decease I do give and Bequeathe the said Janey unto Elizabeth the daughter of Samuel Austin. And the first child that the said Negro girl brings I do give and bequeathe unto Mary the daughter of Samuel Austin.

I do give and bequeathe unto Elizabeth Lyle daughter of William Lyle two young ewes.

And I do hereby constitute, ordain and appoint my loving wife and my son Samuel Austin joint executors of this my last will and testament, revoking and disannulling all other will or wills heretofore made, and I desire that my body may be decently buried on the plantation that I now dwell upon between my late wife and daughter.

In witness hereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal this 18th day of January, 1743.

(signed) Henry Austin.

Signed, sealed and acknowledged in presence of us.

William Lyles

Elinor Lyles

My further will and pleasure is that my grandson Henry Austin son of Henry Austin may have unto his part one Negro boy named Caesar, and that my granddaughter Elinor have one Negro girl named Nancy.

(signed) Henry Austin.

The above will was probated Aug. 31, 1745.

This Henry Austin of Calvert is mentioned very frequently in the records of All Saints parish. As early as 1710 he took the oath of Abjuration. He held some office in the church from 1711 till his death in 1745.

Jane, the second wife, was the widow Harvey when Henry married her, and had six children by her first marriage. See Accounts, Liber 11, folio 71/77.

An inventory of the estate was filed Nov. 25, 1745, by the executor, Samuel Austin.

Now, a few records regarding the deceased son Henry, father of the two children:

The parish register of St. James church in Anne Arundel County gives the marriage of Henry Austin and Priscilla Pierce in 1736, and the birth of their daughter Eleanor in 1737.

At Annapolis there is an inventory of the estate of Henry Austin, Jun., of Anne Arundel County, made Jan. 26, 1741. Priscilla Austin is named as administratrix. Next of kin are Henry Austin and Samuel Austin.

Samuel Austin, in his accounts rendered as executor of the estate of the elder Henry, lists various sums paid to Richard Smith of Anne Arundel, guardian of the two children.

From the above, it appears that Samuel Austin who married Elizabeth Marshall was the brother of Henry Austin, Jr., who died in 1740/41 in Anne Arundel County. If this is the case, then who were the two brothers who first came from England, one of whom disappeared? We do not know. Could they have settled in Anne Arundel County?

The line between Anne Arundel and Calvert Counties was long in dispute. Land in this disputed area might have been listed first in one county, and later in the other.

The present All Saints church, only a few rods from the site of the original church and burying-ground, is only five or six miles south of the line. It is about thirty miles from Annapolis on the Solomon's Road. On this same road between All Saints and Annapolis were St. James and All Hallows. Each of these three churches served a parish ten miles square, as laid out by the crown in 1692.

ADDITIONAL RECORDS

Members of St. James parish, like Henry Austin, Jr., could not have lived a great many miles from the county line.

All Hallows, ten miles south of Annapolis, was built before 1692. The parish register records the burial of a Samuel Austin Feb. 11, 1696/7. An inventory of his estate made March 5, 1697, can be found in the Hall of Records. See Liber 15, folio 99. As yet no connecting link has been found between him and the Austins who attended St. James and All Saints.

According to the genealogy, the two brothers came "at a very early time." Further research may find them.

We note another possible error in the genealogy: Descendants of William Austin's uncle Henry who lived in Albemarle County, Va., have records which give his wife's name as Sarah Harrison and not Sarah Hardesty, as is stated in the genealogy. For further information on this point write to J. Paris Palmer, 3770 Broad View Drive, Cincinnati. He is a descendant of Henry's son John.

We are indebted to Mr. Palmer for the records from St. James and All Hallows.

MISCELLANEOUS NOTES

No extensive search has been made for a Revolutionary ancestor. There were several Thomas Austins from Maryland in the War, but as yet we have not succeeded in identifying any one of them as William Austin's father who died in 1778. If he had been a soldier, it seems probable that William would have made a note of that fact.

Descendants of Eleanor Ann McDaniel, Mary Ann Cowgill, and Jane Shields have a Revolutionary ancestor in William McDaniel, father of Eleanor Ann, and grandfather of the other two. He enlisted in 1776 while a resident of Calvert Co., Maryland. Write to Veterans Administration, Washington D. C., and refer to BA-J/AWF, William McDaniel, R. 6683.

Descendants of Mary Smith can trace their ancestry back to Michael Higgins, soldier in the Revolution from New Jersey. Descendants of Lois Smith, half-sister of Mary, have a Revolutionary ancestor in Abel Dalby from Pennsylvania. See "Ephraim Smith and His Lineal Descendants" published in 1930.

Descendants of Mary Collett can trace their lineage back to Danial Collett, a soldier in the Revolution from Virginia.

MARY AUSTIN who married William Wells—see genealogy—had descendants who moved to Ohio and settled at Vandalia in Montgomery County. Samuel Smith Austin and his cousin Thomas Douglass Austin, both of Clarksville, used to go to the county fair at Dayton, and then pay a visit to their cousins in Vandalia. This was about the year 1860.

We have given complete lists of the children and grandchildren of Rev. William and Elizabeth Austin. In the succeeding generations only the living are given, but we have in our possession complete lists of all descendants with the exception of two families in the fourth generation.
